THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser.

Imperishable.
The pure, the bright, the beautiful,
That stirred our hearts in youth,
The impulse to a world-wide prayer,
The dreams of love and truth,
The longings after something lost,
The spirit's yearning cry,
The strivings after better hopes,
These things can never die.
The timid hand stretched forth to aid
A brother in his need,
The kindly word in grief's dark hour,
That gladdens the distressed,
The plea for mercy, softly breathed,
When justice threatens high,
The sorrow of a contrite heart,
These things shall never die.
The memory of a clasping hand,
The pressure of a kiss,
And the trifle, sweet and frail,
That makes up love's first bliss,
If with a firm, unchanging faith,
And holy trust and high,
These things have clasped, those lips have met,
These things shall never die.
The cruel and the bitter word,
That wounded as it fell;
The chilling want of sympathy,
We feel but never tell.
The hard repulse that chills the heart,
Whose hopes were bounding high,
In an unfeeling record kept,
These things shall never die.
Let nothing pass for every day,
Must find some work to do;
Lose not a chance to waken love—
Be firm, and just, and true;
So shall a light that cannot fade Beam on thee from on high,
And angel voices say to thee,
These things shall never die.
—All The Year Round.

VARIETY.

Little minds are ruined by paltry successes.
Gratitude is a lively hope of favors to come.
Modesty, like perfect honesty, is a scarce article now-a-days.
Looking-glasses are not as correct at forty as they appear to us at twenty.
A man who does not blow his own trumpet has not usually got one to blow.
"To err is human; to forgive divine," and he who cannot forgive shall never err.
The man who "kept his word," gave serious offense to Webster who wanted it for his dictionary.
"Matchless misery," has been declared to be having a cigar and nothing to light it with.
The only hate we are apt to bear with Christian patience, is the hate of those who envy us.
A country carpenter, nailing up a board forbidding vagrants to trespass, placed it with the inscription reversed. "Beggars are accustomed to reverses," observed a passer-by.
HATTEN PROVERBS.—Shame makes you drink out of the magic cup.
Those who eat eggs don't think of the pain of the hen in laying them.
When one vessel is wrecked another can still sail.
The silly goat eats at the foot of the bluff. Fools always fare poorly.
The garden is never niggardly to its master.
If those old giants, who essayed to capture heaven by heaping hills on hills, had gone to their work by heaping prayers upon prayers, they would have succeeded.
MAKING THEM RUN.—A traveler relating his adventures, told the company that he and his servant had made fifty wild Arabas run; which startling them, he observed that there was no great merit in that, "for,"
said he, "we ran, and they ran after us."
The Boston and White Mountain section of the American Telegraph Company is completed to Littleton, N. H. Offices will soon be opened in nearly all the villages on the line of the railroad between Littleton and Plymouth, on the new portion of the telegraph.
HARD BUTTER WITHOUT ICE.—To have delightfully hard butter in summer, without ice, put a trivet, or any open flat thing with legs in a sauce; put on this trivet the plate of butter; fill the sauce with water, turn a common flower-pot over the butter, so that the sauce is over the butter. Plug the hole of the flower-pot with a cork, then drench the flower-pot with water, set in a cool place until morning, or if done at breakfast, the butter will be very hard by supper time. How many of our town boarding-school girls, who have been learning philosophy, astronomy, syntax and prosody, can write an explanation to this in a month?

GRATITUDE.—All greatness consists in this—in being alive to what is going on around one; in living actually; in giving voice to the thought of humanity; in saying to one's fellows what they want to hear, or what they need to hear, at that moment; in being the conductor, the result of the influence of the present world. In no other way can one better affect the world than thus. You will see in looking at history, that all great men have been a piece of their time; taken them out and set them elsewhere, and they will not fit so well; they were made for their day and generation. The literature which has left any mark, which has been worthy of the name, has always mirrored what was going around it; not necessarily daguerreotyping the mere outside, but at least reflecting the inside—the thoughts, if not the actions of men—their feelings and sentiments, even if it treated of apparently far-off themes.
HOME MUSIC.—We take it to be true, with rare exceptions, wherever you hear a great deal of music in a house, that dwelling is tenanted by a happy family.
If you hear a domestic going gleefully about her work, and lighting her labors with a song, you may take it for granted that she has neither a discontented temper nor has she a sordid mistress.
Girls that don't like their place are far more likely to go mooping and grumbling about the house than to hum a pleasant ditty or carol a roundelay. Then if you hear "the young ladies of the house" without the accompaniment of the piano, trilling a popular air or a merry catch, you may be sure they are light hearted and happy, and as good as they are cheerful.
And what better proof of happiness all around can there be than the evening social concert, when old and young, male and female, make melody with their hearts? In some houses the very purring of the cat is "musical, most musical," while the warbling of a canary bird is far sweeter than the most dulcet of operatic voices. And the recommendation of home music is, that it is cheap as well as joy-speaking and joy-inspiring.
